Nows of Railroads.

The Chesspeake & Ohio Railway expects to carry one of the greatest crowds of the entire summer down to the season or its two clegant Sunday outling trains to-morrow. The weather is propitious for seashore outlings and as the season is fast slipping away many will take advantage of the opportunity to corral a few sea breezes and get thoroughly cool. One train leaves at $230; the other at $45.

The Wost Point outlings Sunday promise to be the largest Sunday trips of the season. Preparations are being made to carry down a large crowd, and a delightful day may be spent at this nearby resort. The Southern Railway will rui two trains down, as usual, that day. Preparations for the great Labor Day outing at West Point, under the auspices of the Central Trades and Labor Council and allied trades, on September 7th, are not yet completed. An elaborate programme of athletic sports and amusements will be arranged, and a day of entertainment is anticipated. The rolling stock of the road will be taxed to secure coaches sufficient to haul the crowds. It is expected that upwards of a thousand persons will spend the day at Beach Park.

ALEXANDRIA. VA., Aug. 28.—There has been a growing suspicion among the police that frederic Dalil, the sailor, who was found floating in the dock Monday morning, did not meet his death in an accidental manner, but was foully dealt with. As a result of these suspicions, a negro sailor, named Edgar Sminons, who is thought to have been the last one with him alive, was arrested last align.

He was given a preliminary hearing this morning, but was detained until the case good be thoroughly sifted.

SUPREME COURT CLERKSHIP

Col. B. O. James Has Never Been Cardidate for the Place.

The contest for the clerkship The contest for the clerkship of the Supreme Court of Appeals, if there may be said to be a contest in the strict sense of that term, has not developed any additional candidates. Among those mentioned, however is Mr. R. B. Buford, of Bedford, a gentleman, said by those who know him, to be eminently fitted for the position. He was for many years a clerk of the County and Cleruit Courts of the State and made a fine record as an official. Before the appointment of the late clerk, Mr. Buford way arged to make application for the position, but declined to so, owing to important business engagements. He is not now in public life and his friends say that if the appointment were tendered him he would make a fine selection, where and Mr. H. Stewart.

GOVERNOR MONTAGUE WILL RETURN TO-DAY

Governor Montague will reach the city this afternoon or evening from the Jordo White Sulphur Springs, where he has been spending the summer chiefly with trips from that point to the Harrisonburg horse show, the Bar Association meeting at Hot Springs, and other places. He has had a very enjoyable vacation. Not a great deal of work awaits him on his return, Secretary Ritchie having disposed of much that came in during his absence, and sent some to him that required immediate attention.

Among the matters to be taken up by the Governor immediately upon his return, are several applications for requisitions on the Governors of other States for persons accused of crime committed in this State, but now under arrest elsewhere. These will not be given out until the Executive has acted on them.

Hon, D. Q. Eggieston, Secretary of the Governor Montague will reach the city

By JOHN MARTHOL.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NEW YORK, August 28,—One must travel through the United States to understand aright the United States to understand aright the United States to understand aright the true conditions of industry and commerce. The Wall Streetman is prone to believe the Exchange, the mirror on which is reflected the output of the mine; the product of loom and forge, of mill and factory; the state of the labor market and the conditions which regulate the volume of transpertation. Recent financial disturbances have abundantly demonstrated that low prices for bonds and stocks may prevail when the business done by the corporations issuing such securities is profitable; indeed, market values have been lower than when the same corporations have made a less profitable showing. Causos, simple as the laws of nature, have preduced these conditions, yet there are many who refuse to recognize them. They prefer to ascribe complex and unnatural reasons for the depression or profess to see in it the scheming hand of shrewd financiers. When entirely at loss for a solution they say: Rockefeller.

Many years ago there sat behind an addicatored lose in an Alastina vil-loss for a solution they say Rockefeller.

Many years ago there sat behind an old-fashloned loom in an Alsatian village a weaver's apprentice, learning the trade that was to win him bread for a little while, and dreaming dreams that have at last been realized. That is the first glimpse which is given us of Heinrich Conried, the autocrat of operatic music in this city at the present time, the successor of the great Grau and a long line of predecessors equally illustrious Far easier of achievement the baton of highest military command from the ranks than the baton of the director and manager in the Metropolitan Opera. House from such a seginning. Great things are expected of Herr Conried this season, and from the announcements thus far made there is likely to be no disappointment. Nearly all the great European singers will appear in the best productions of the Italian, French and German schools. "Parsifal" will be the great event, but it is a long way of—next December. The enormous sum of the season is to be expended in its production.

little or no impression, although she is a grandmother, or ought to be. How does she preserve that marvelously fresh complexion and youthful appearance—her bauty, in fact, for the beauty is still there in full evidence? "Walking," is her own answer for the purposes of publication, so that I will let it go at that. If I really knew, I should be inclined to go ahead and make a million out of the prescription.

A company is being organized here with the object of inducing rich Irish-Americans to purchase cottage sites on the Irish coast and to start fashlonable summer resorts. Several of the wealthy ones have already promised co-operation, and the idea may eventuate in success. Land is cheap, building inexpensive and the air and scenery delightful. The scheme is and scenery delignitian The several and policy. Croker thought at one time of buying the Lakes of Killarney property and putting up a Tammany club house there, but thore was probably more "blarney" (than Killarney in the conception.

The English of the old Tribune was closely scrutinized from day to day and every blunder pointed out to the man who had made it. This was the work of the Hierary editor, George Ripley, who, with Charles A. Dana, edited Appleton's Cyclopedia. Mr. Dana, by the way, was another graduate of the Tribune Academy. He left it to become Assistant Secretary of War under Stanton, and an Mr. Dana took with him from the Tribune Amos J. Cummings, another pupil of the academy, and also Isaae W. Not in at least a decade and more has base-ball been so popular in Now York as it is at the present time. The daily attendance at the games runs up to the unprecedented figures of 12.000, which, of course, leaves a handsome margin of profit. John T. Brush at the close of the reason will certainly be the heaviest winner in the long history of the game.

Mr. George J. Gould's country place in Jersey is very hearly equal in extent to that of Mr. Rockefeller, and much more becutiful in many points. Above all things, it is a hore, splendid in every way, and exemptiving the very highest good taste. The Rockefeller establishment is on a grand scale, but it will take half a century before its ransess wears of, so that it will at into the Hudson River landscape. That is the charm of the country house, and he are only just beginning to get at 1t. Many of the old southern manistons possessed it in an eminent degree, but that is another story. Some Deglishman speake are wrote that it takes a hundred years to make a gentleman and three hundred to make a lawn. The Rockefeller curf will probably get there in time.

receiver for their big store. Mr. Alex. H. Meyer sont the following telegram yesterday in regard to the trouble:

"The Meyer Store Dry Goods Company, composed of A. J. Rosenthal, president; A. H. Meyer, vice-president; W. D. Moyer, treasurer, and Charles W. Fellows, secretary, all of Richmond excepting the president, had bunkruptcy application filed against them in the United States District Court, but the court appointed Charles A. Stacy, of the wholesale dry goods firm of Rice, Sits and Company, as receiver, who reappointed the officers of the company to their respective positions to continue the business under his receivership. The receiver's powers are very sweeping, allowing him to make dobts and continue the business uninterruptedly. The store has not been closed, and the company is fighting the proceeding vigorously, having won their first fight in having a receiver appointed, instead of being thrown into bankruptcy." The Meyer brothers, under the firm of Julius Meyer's Sons, were long leading merchants here, and the news of their trouble has been received here with sincere regret. For many years the firm was located at Sixth and Broad, but the business grew to such proportions that it became necessary to secure a larger building. Foushee and Broad was selected, and here they did an immense business until their store was totally destroyed by fire early on the morning of April 10, 1901.

The reason given for the delay was that the stone could not be secured, and a representative from the quarries was present and stated that he had plenty of stone, but could not get cars to bring the stone to the city. He stated that he had made efforts to get the stone, but without avail. He further stated that he would at once see the commissioners in reference to the matter, and have the proper steps taken to require the railroad to supply cars to bring the stone to the city.

The bids for paving Sixth Street, besween Broad and Grace Streets, were, upon motion of Mr. West, rejected, on the ground that it would be better to withhold such contract until the adjacent alleys had been graded and improved.
In view of the fact that the contractors had no stone to complete other work, the committee felt that no delay would be occasioned in the work on Sixth Street.
The committee also agreed, among other things, to place a flagging at Cary and
